HAMILTON AND NORTH WESTERN.

A number of private gentlemen have had a survey made of the route of the Hamilton and North Western Railroad through the westerly end of the city by Meesrs. Leither and Biggar, civil engineers, of this city, and last night those gentlemen published the report of the engineers in the Hamilton Times. The engineers find five routes in that direction, the first of which, in their opinion, will cost $80,000 and the second $155,-000. Both these lines, however, require the use of all or a part of the Great Western Railway or it- property be-tween Hamilton and Wellington Square, and whether the Great Western would be consenting parties to such an arrangement or not, is not stated. The other three routes the engineers are of opinion would cost respectively, 1st, $200,000; 2nd, 220,000; 3rd, 245,000. These estimates are for a line independent of the Great Western.

The report of these engineers is not without trace of haste in its preparation, as, for instance, it speaks of one line by which the Wellington Square bonus of $10,000 would be lost to the Company, and of another by which it would be saved. Now Wellington Square never gave a bonus for any amount. The bonus at stake in the location of the line between here and Wellington Square is the Helton bonus of $65,000. It was urged against the survey of the Com. pany's Engineers that they were probably bigssed by the supposed wish of the Directors for an Eastern route, by the same method of reasoning, the Engineers engaged by the advocates of the Western route would be open to the same suspicion, though there is no evidence of it in either case, and we hope the suspicion does injustice to the standing of all the professional gentlemen

Meanwhile another survey has been concluded under the superintendence of Mr. Molesworth, the Engineer of the Public Works for the Government of Mr. Molesworth' finds no ob-Ontario. jection to the bridge over the canal. His opinion is that there are but two lines by the west to be thought of, the one of which will cost $492,270, and the other $397,560, both of these routes avoid the property of the Great Western, and will be about two miles shorter than the Beach route to the common point of junction at the Great Western Railway near Wellington Square, but as the lisiton by law requires that a station is to be located at Wellington Square, a switch track would have to be constructed to that village, making the Rastern and Western routes about the same length. These are the only two westerly lines which Mr. Molesworth thinks can be constructed within the time of the disposal of the Company, and the line marked A, he thinks, is decidedly the best of the two. The cost of that line, as compared with the eastern route by the Beach, he estimates as follows:

Line A (by the west) . . . $492,270. Easterly line by the Beach, 163,940, pending Mr. Kerr's promised exposure of Harney.

The points in the case so far which are made against Mr. Kerr are, that he did appoint Greene to the position he was seeking; Greene was not one of the constituents, did not belong even to the same State, and presumably there were not a few of his own constituents who were anxious for the office. Greene, moreover, was a Republican, Mr. Kerr a Democrat, and it is almost unknown in American politics for public men to appoint their opponents to office. It could not have been friendship for Harney which caused Mr. Kerr to give Greene the appointment, for, he says, he has no recollection of ever seeing Harney in his life, until now, and that while it may have been Harney who "introduced Greene to him," he has no recollection that it was. In Mr. Kerr's favor there is to be considered his long career without the breath of scandal tainting his reputation. There is also the strong improbability that for the paltry sum of $450 he would place himself in the power of two political opponents, which Harney and Green were. There is shown, too, to be a motive on Harney's part to damage Mr. Kerr. Harney is now in the Appraiser's office in Washington at a salary of $1,800 a year, and that office has been threatened with an official investitigation. It seems to have been in reply to that threat that Harney first whispered quietly what he could prove against Mr. Kerr, but without the exy pectation that he would be called upon to do so.

It is sincerely to be hoped that Mr. Kerr may be able to free himself from this accusation beyond all room for doubt. If such practices as these have been going on under the surface, and have been participated in by the trusted political leaders of the people, then indeed there is a disease in the very foundations of the political fabric which loudly calls for active treatment. If the sense of political virtue thas become so obtuse that representatives, whose outward department was that of honorable men, could unblushingly barter away the offices in their gift for gold, it is time to inquire how far the demoralization has gone and how sweeping must be the measure of reform for its eradication. With the poli tics of the United States turned into a huckstering trade, to gratify the itching palms of political leaders, heither the people of that country nor their mearest neighbors are safe. The lust for gold, like the appetite for drink, increases by what it feeds upon, and if it can be gratified in the field of politics it would welcome war rather than be denied. We prefer at present, however, to believe that Speaker Kerr is the victim of a base conspiracy, rather than that he has been guilty, but in any case ithis to be hoped that the truth will come to light.

NO. 129.

Hamilton and Northwestern Railway. Eastern and Western Routes. Report by Mr. Molesworth.

TORONTO, 24th May, 1876.

John Stuart, Esq., President :

Sin-In accordance with your request on behalf of the Directors of the Hamilton and Northwestern Reliway Company, I have during the present month made a series of examinations and instrumental surveys for the purpose of ascertaining the practicability as to time and cost of construction of taking your Ballway by a westerly route through the City of Hamilton and thence to Welling-ton Square as ampused with the time and cost of construction of the easterly, route via Burlington Beach to the same place.

On the 4th inst, accompanied by your Chief Enginer, I went over the ground and exem-ined the location of two lines of survey, leaving the City of Hamilton respectively by westerly and easterly routes, being those referred to in his reports dated the 1st and 2nd insts. I in his reports attend the first and side in the was also shown a plan, profiles and report of Messrs. Stauton and Franks, Civil Engineers, dated October, 1876, and addressed to a Committee appointed by the Town of Dundas. The profiles I found imperfect, as they embraced unly small portions of the lines inembraced unity small portions of the lines in-dicated on the plan, and, as the report states, there was not sufficient data given from in-strumental surveys on which to base any quantities origines forcalculation as to actual cost, grades, curves, time of cenetiuction and other details. Therefore, as the lines shown other details. Therefore, as the linds shown on the plan were spoken of in the report as being practicable and not costly. I decided then, and on subsequent visits on having instrumental surveys made of the several westerly routes advocated by Messrs. Stanton & Franks, as well as by Messrs. Griffin, Mitchell and others who were impressed with the desirability of having a westerly or let. The surveys of the several lines have been completed following the routes indicated as locally as the requirements of the necessary clos ly as the requirements of the necessary grading and curvature would permit.

A general plan has been prepared on which all the lines surveyed are shown as far as the G. W. B. B. at Wellington Square, which is the objective point to be obtained sch. Profiles have been made for each line separately,

The surveys embrace the following times : 1. The located line on the Easterly route in the Beach, crossing Burlington Canal. 2. The Westerly route marked line A via the Designdin's Canal high level thouse to Wellington Square.

3. The same line with a change of route in the city of Hamilton marker B connection.

4. The Westerly route marked B line via the Desjardin's Canal low level and Carroll's Point, thence to Wellington Square.

5. The same line B with a change of route marked A connection from sear the Desjardin's Canal to Wellington Square.

In connection with the lines following the Westerly route through Hamilton the following subjects are points of much importance.

It the cost of right of way in the city as facting the whole cost of construction. 2nd. The interference with the surface of

and. The interference with the suriace of streets at the inliway crossings when not on the level of the street grades.

3rd. The interference type the same cause with the gas or water pipes and sewers by deep cutting.

I have gone type the lipes, where the same in the following brief report on each, socompanied by estimates of the cost of construction based on similarity of widths, alones, structures, and on similarity of widths, slopes, structures, and cost of details where practicable.

thence it crosses the main track of the Great Western Railway by an over-bridge, and the old channel of the Dundae marsh by a trestle bridge, alongside that of the Great Western bridge, alongside that of the Great Western on the Tcronto branch, and takes a parallel line with that railway to the common point of these surveys at Wellington Square station. With regard to location, this is undoubtedly the best of the lines having a westerly outlet from Hamilton, and is the least costly with one exception, that being an alteration or what is shown on the plan as "B connection," of which I shall write after dealing with this line.

The grades of this line

Hamilton terminus will give the following

The steep grades of 4187 commencing at the Hamilton terminus has a length of 1.65 miles, but according as it does from that point, would be a descending ready for the heavy traffic from the north. It is however objectionable to have such a grade crossing the streets of the city where trains should not pass at a faster rate than four miles an hour.

Several of the embankments and cuttings on this line are heavier than any on the easterly line, but on the whole the earth-works are lighter than on any of the other westerly lines examined by me. The greatest height of embankment is 36 feet and the greatest depth of cutting valid be eighteen feet.

The bridging would embrace the following works: 350 feet lineal of Howe truss bridging 108 feet above water surface of the pringing 100 seet above water author of the Deglardinos Canal; 720 feet of treatle bridging, 83 feet high across the old channel, from the Dundas Marsh; 90 feet of treatle bridge 30 feet high, and 100 feet of similar attructure 20 feet in height.

In the city of Hamilton, the railway would pass over Caroline street by a bridge. All the other streets crossed would be passed on a level, and the following alterations of street grades would be necessary to meet the grade required by the railway: Streets to be raised at crossings: Cannon street 2 ft.; Kigin street 2 ft.; Mary street 0 50 ft.; John street 2 ft.; Hughson street 1 ft.; Locomotive street 2 50 ft.; Ma; ill street 4 ft.; Orook street 5 ft.; Locke street 7 ft., and Inchbury street 6 50 ft.

7 ft., and Inchbury street 8.50 ft.

Streets to be covered at crossings: James Street, 2.50 fest; Maonab Street, 3 feet;
Park btreet, 4.50 feet; Bay Street, 4.50 feet;
Railway Street, 1.50 feet; Hess Street, 1 foot, Catharine Street would be the only one crossed without any alteration of the sur-

The water pipes are laid 5 feet below the surface on the streets and the gas pipes from 2 to 4 feet; there fore these pipes would have to be altered in level in each of the streets where the grades would _be lowered so as to keep them the proper depth under the altered surfaces.

The atteration of the grades on most of the treets named would be very objectionable to the interests of the city, and the crossing of the streets by trains would undoubtedly be bjectionable.

The estimated cost of this line, marked A. on the plan, is as follows :-

Histimated cost of right of way$341,100 00 construction 151 170 00

$492,270 00

It will be seen, on a comparison of the cost of this line with that of the easterly route, that the actual post of construction differs but little in each, the great difference in the total cost of each line being caused by the value of the right of way and land dam-the value of the right of way and land damages, which, on line A., are estimated as $320,000 more than on the easterly route.

The advantages in connection with line A., would be its being two miles shorter than the easterly route by the Beach, and the avoidance of a swing bridge.

The disadvantages would be the very largely increased cost and the very largely increased cost and the very objectionable feature of crossing so many of the streets of Hamilton on the level and with altered surfaces.

SED.—THE WEITERLY BOUTH MARKED LINE "A"
ON THE PLAN WITH "B" COMMECTION.

This line is indentical with that marked A trong bout its course from Dundum to the track of the Hamilton & Lake Eric Esilway, near Catharina and Liberty streets. The length of line is increased about 2,000 teet by this alteration, but the grades are semewhat more favorable and the cost of 1.—THE ECOLATED LITTE OR THE MASTERS ROOTS; SCHOWNAY IS largely reduced making this route that is line A with B connection the

The location of this survey commences at the line of the Hamilton and Lake Eric railthe line of the Hamilton and Lake Rrie rail-way, in the city of Hamilton, at a point a little south of Barton street, to which it is parallel for a length of about two miles, then, with a 2 degree curve, it crosses the line of that street, and about 1800 feet from the end of the curve crosses the Great West-ern railway obliquely with a straight line on the level. The grades of the projected line being level, approaching the Great Western by crossing from the city and descending 24.8 feet per mile after passing that railway for a distance of about half a mile—the straight line being continued to a point four straight line being continued to a point four miles from its terminus in Hamilton, then turns and passes over Burlington Beach. It will cross the canal with a swing bridge, having a ciear span of 156 feet, the channel between the piers being 146 feet in width. The centre line of the railway and site of the Swing Bridge at the Canal is located 1,536 feet from the outer and of the light house pier at the entrance from Lake Catario; and $1,160 f et from the end of the same pier in Burlington Bay. having a clear span of 156 feet, the channel Bay.

Passing from the Beach with an ascending grade of 41.71 feet per mile, the lime crosses on the level, the loronto Branch of the Great Western Bailway at the Wellington Square station, the common point of terminus of each of the surveys referred to in this report. The grades on this line commencing at the Hamilton terminus give the following results:

be driven.

The chief bridge structure will be at the Burlington Canal, which will be constructed Burlington Canal, which will be constructed of iron or wood with two clear spans of 155 feet sach, one of which will extend across the channel of the canal, and the other will be a Galance span. This bridge should be opened and closed by steam power, which will be a necessity in the turning of a structure of the length required. The portion of this line within the City of Hamilton does not pass shrough any property with large improvement, or of great value, and, therefore, the cost of the right of way will be largely under that on satther of the western lines which I have examined, or indeed of any other practicable line in a westerly direction which may be examined by any one.

westerly direction which may be examined by any one.

The alteration of grades in crossing the streets on this route will be small, and will not injuriously associant.

On Wellington street-direct will be a 2tt. cutting, and an alteration of grade to that extent. There is only one water pipe at a depth of 5 feet on any street dropped by this line, and there are no gas pipes.

The estimated cost of the estically route wia Burlington Beach is as follows:

The curves on B connection would be as

1. Curve of & degrees at the Hamilton and

2. Ourve of 2 degrees and 1 curve of one

3. Ourve of the degree at A line.

The embankments and cuttings would not be heary on this deviation, the greatest height of embankment being 7 feet, and greatest depth of cutting 17 feet; but several of these would interiere very seriously with the grades of the streets at the railway cross-ings, and the following alterations of street grades would be necessary to meet the grades required for the railway :

STREETS TO BE RAISED AT CROSSINGS.

Walnut street, 3 ft; Catharine, 6.50 ft;
John, 5 ft; Hughson, 5 ft; James, 1 50 ft;
Malden Lane, 1 ft; Ray and Main streets,

The gas and water pipes would all be interfered with in lowering the grades of the streets named, and would have to be laid at greater depths.

By comparison it will be seen that the street crossings with altered grades would be much more objectionable to the interests of the city on this line than on line A itself, and the difference in cost would not, in my opinion, compensate the city for the additional damage done.

The estimated dost of line A, with B connection, is as follows:

THE WESTERLY ROUTE MARKED B LINE, VIA THE DESJARDING! CANAL LOW LEVEL AND CARROLL'S POINT, THENCE TO WELLINGTON SQUARE.

The survey of this line is partly on a route advocated by Messrs. Staunton & Franks, and others, and was selected by me for examination as being the most desirable of the lines referred to in the report of Messrs. Staunton & Franks, but for which, as I before mentioned, no sufficient data were given on which to base any idea of cost.

This line commonces at the Hamilton and Lake Elet track on Oberry street, near Calb.

Lake Erle track on Oberry street, near Catharina street, and thence westerly, enters a rayine near Look street, which it follows more or less to the marsh; thence it passes under the Great Western Railway at the southerly side of the Desjardins' Canal and sourserry side or the 1983pardias' Canal and scross the Bay to Carroll's Point, whence it follows the bank to the top, about lot 13 in the broken front lots of East Flamboro', and from thence takes a straight line to Wellington Square.

The grades on this line, commending at the Hamilton terminus, give the following

Length of line about ... 9 65 miles. The delevations and formations in cuttings and embankments on this route would be and embansments on this rause would be beary, the greatest dopth of outlings being 45 feet, and highest embankments being 63 feet. The quantities in exparations on this line, as compared with those on the it east-erly routes" and " line marked A," are as the bridging 1200 feet in length would be required, in addition to a swing bridge for the use of the Canal with two sixty feet openings.

The bottom of the Bay for about 800 feet in length on the line of survey is formed of soft mud, and it is thirty feet from the surof the water to solid material fit for bolding piles, and, as the treatle work would be ten feet above water surface, the piles would require to be forty feet in length above holding ground, and could not be traced between that and the surface of the cost of the line greater.

The cost of right of way is less by this route than by line "A," but the large excavations and the tunnelling make the whole cost of the line greater.

The following streets would be crossed under by a tunnel: Hugheou, James, Macnabb, Park, Bay, Caroline and Hess.

Streets passed under by bridging, without altering street grades, would be: John, Queen, Bold, Ray and Lock. Catharine and Pearl Streets would also be crossed under, but with some alteration of grade. O'Beilly Street would have to be lowered

2.5 feet at the railway crossing, and Walnut Street 7 feet.

The water and gas pipes, as well as the sewers, on many of the streets crossed, would require alteration in connection with the cuttings and tunnelling.

The high ground requiring so much deep cutting and tunnelling, on the whole, makes this line out of the city less objectionable in creasing the streets than the B connection of line A, which, however, is much the cheaper line.

The estimated cost of this line, marked B on the plan, is as follows :

$550,166 The objections to this line are as follows:

 The excessive cost over the others.
 The difficulty of constructing and maintaining permanent bridge works Bay, between Desigrdin's canal and Carroll's point.
3. The interference with streets and city property.

4. The time required for construction which could not be less than two years, in toking out the deep cuttings and tunneling and most probably would extend over three

5-THE WRITERLY ROUTE MARKED B, WITH A, CONNECTION, VIA DESJARDIN'S CANAL AND WATERDOWN, THEROE TO WELLINGTON SQUARE.

This line has been strongly advocated by Messrs. Stanaton & Franks in their report to the Dundas Committee, but without giv-ing any reliable survey or details on which the cost could be based, and as Mr. Griffin and others desired its examination, I decided on an instrumental survey, which has been completed, so as to give approximate results. The line takes the same course out of Hamilton and as far as the Desjardine Canal, as line B, but it there diverges, crosses the Canal inside the marsh, passes under the Greet Western Hallway, thence across the Bay, and rising through a series of ravines and along side hills, at tains the level of the Toronto branch of the Great Western near Waterdown station; from thence it keeps parallel to that railway to Wellington Square station, where it attains the same point as all the other surveys mentioned. The line takes the same course out of Ham.

This line will therefore, be identical with line B, from Cherry street, Hamilton, to the Desjardines Canal. From thence to Waterdown it takes a different course from any of the other surveys.

From Waterdown Station the ground traversed is similar to that of line marked A. Between the Canal and Waterdown Station auling his unoffending person he telt there is one long grade of 53 feet to the mile ist he was "striking at the British for s length of 1.75 miles, and between the track, for the additional distance between Catherine and Cannon streets.

I am therefore of opinion, that line A as originally located is the best westerly outlet that could be obtained for the railway leading out of Hamilton.

The point at issue between the merits of The point at issue between the merits of the relative routes of the Easterly and Westerly lines, therefore accolver itself into a comparison between the Easterly line by the Beach, and line A via the Disjardines Canal. Both lines are well located and could be constructed without any serious engineering difficulties or difference in time of completion, but line A would be much more costly and would interfere considerably with the grades of several of the leading streets of Hamilton.

The cost of each line, inclusive of right of way, is estimated as follows:

The Easterly Line via Burlington Beach $163,919
The Westerly Line A. via Desjardines Canal 492.270

The difference of cost being.... in favor of the Easterly route.

In regard to the crossing of the Briling-ton Canal by the line following the easterly route, I have examined the site of the proposed swing bridge. It is, as I before stated, 1530 feet inwards from the outer end of the lighthouse pier in Lake Ontario, and 1,169 feet from the entrance to the canal rom Burlington Bay. The railway bridge when constructed would by the ordinary role of highways in such cases, be always open except when closed across the channel for the passage of trains and all vessels approaching the bridge or passing through the canal would have the right of way. I cannot see, therefore, that a swing bridge located so far from the entrance of the canal and subject to such raise could in any way be a detri-ment to the navigation between Lake On-tario and Hamilton; and takin; all the cir-cumstances affecting the location of the sevceral lines, viz., street crossings, grades, curves; curves; curves; entant ments, and bridging, as well as the important item of cost, I am of opinion that the line located by the easterly route, vis Burlington Beach, is the best in all respects that can be adopted by the Ramilton and North Western Railway Company.

I have the honor to remain,

Your obedient servant, (Signed) T. N. MOLESWORTH. Engireer of Public Works, Ontario.

DETECTION AND PLIGHT OF AN AUSTRIAN FORGER, CLAIMING TO BE COMMISSIONED TO THE CEN-

On Saturday, April 30th, a carriage was driven up to the Westminster Hotel, corner of Irving place and Sixteenth street, and a man evidently a foreigner and of fine ap-pearance, entered the hotel and registered his name as "Baron Semoskeoy, Budah Pesth." He had three large trunks and a valice, was elegantly dressed, wore costly diamonds in his shirt front, and appeared like a man of wealth and prominen ace was peculiar, his features were sharp, there was a slight depression at the bridge of the nose, and his forehead was full and protruding. He wore side whiskers, his hair was gray, and he seemed to be more than 50 years of age. He appeared to have plenty of money, and made many friends by his gentlemanly behavior and being who became most intimate with him he fold in confidence that he was sent to this country to represent the Austrian government at the Centennial Exhibition.

Just before the opening of the exhibition "Baron Samoskeoy" packed up his trunks and started for Philadelphia, as he stated, to take part in the opening exercises: On May 16 he returned to the Westmiaster hotel, but without any baggage axcept a small handbag. He registered himself as "Baron Semoskeor, Hungary." He was assigned to room Ne. 38, but only remained to dinner and over one Soon after his return to this city he called at the police central office and info ed Superintendent Walling that he had been robbed of his baggage while on his way to Philadelphia. He stated that he had met a beautiful woman on the train, and had obat-ted freely with her during the journey. He believed that she had learned by his conver-sation of the valuable contents of his trunks. HOLESLIDRA REPORT

Mr. Malcolm Cameron did not take an sred to active part in the public affairs of Canaut some da. Entering Parliament for the first time in 1836, he has ever since been imports more of less prominently before the public during all the political changes and vicissitudes which this country has since then experienced. This is not the time or place to discuss his political record, or to inquire how far he succeeded or failed in his ambition as a public man. As a private individual he will be regretted on all sides, while the members of temperance associations in particular will miss his familiar figure from the place in which they were wont to regard him as one of their most powerful representatives.

similar EURERA! It is found—the cause of 1to 800 the increase of crime. It sin't the hard ince of times, nor the consumption of liquor, nor yet the promiscuous distribution of commutations to red-handed murderers. Superficial observers have been led to suppose that one or all of these causes lay at the bottom of that reckless disregard for law aud order which has shocked the moral sensibilities of the country for months past, but the fatwitted philosopher of the St. Thomas Mome Journal dives deeper into the causes of things, and seriously declares it to be mainly attributable to "the per-"versity and wickedness, of the Con-"servative newspapers." It were gross flattery to write down the author of such a statement as an ass. And yet this is the kind of stuff that innocent Reformers in the country are fed upon.

Mearly half a century ago, a woman by the same of Loomis, living in the town of Pawiet, Vt., was compelled to sek relief from the town which was refused. the finally became a charge upon the town, and she then made a vow that the town of Pawlet should not be without a pasper for afty years. She will be one hundred years old in October, 1876, and the fifty years will expire some time next winter. She has had offers of marriage during her dependence, but her answer always was, "I would not swap the town of Pawlet for the best man living." The town house, where she now resides a over a mile from Powiet village, Less fall she made her samual visit to the village on foot.

The pile bridging required for this line across the Bay would be over 1,600 feet in length, the whole of which would have to seek a firm bottom for piling at 40 feet below the top of the structure, and 30 feet below the snrface of the water, and the bridging would therefore be in a more objectionable position for durability than that on line B across to Carroll's Foint. With this exception and that of the 53 feet grade, the rest of the line is an the 53 feet grade, the rest of the line is a improvement on line B; but there are still all the serious objections to its location that I have mentioned in connection with line B with regard to the route through the city, the I have mentioned in connection heavy excavations and the time required to do

The length of this line from Cherry street in Hamilton to Wellington Square station on the Great Western Railway is 987 miles. COMPARISON OF RESULTS.

Having pointed out the chief points in connection with the survey of each of the routes shown on the plans, I will now briefly state my opinion of the merits or demerits of each one, and in the same connection I wish each one, and in the same connection I wish to state that I have not considered the possibility of any arrangement being made with the Great Western Raliway Company for passing over that line or laying a separate rack thereen between Hamilton and lington Square, or even infininging in any way on that Company's property, except at the actual points of contact in crossing, for the reason that, without imputing any hostile feeling on the part of that Company, I think it would be unfair to expect it to give an absolute right of way. in perpetuits an absolute right of way, in perpetuity, to any other railway to make use of so costly a portion of the Great Western railway system for any equivalent, without some standing that the other Railway Company would always work in harmony with that would always work in harmony with that Company—an understanding which I have Company—an understanding which I presumed that, as an independent line, Hamilton and North Western Railway Company would not be prepared to give.

In making a comparison of the several lines examined which I am of opinion, cover all the available ground for either easterly or westerly lines without infringing on the Great Western Railway Company's property I may at once dismiss line B and line B with A connecting for the following reasons:

1st. The heavy cost of the works. 2 nd. The unsatisfactory character of the idging across the Bay between Desjarding's bridging across the Bay between Desjardine's Canal and the opposite shore, in one case 1,200 and in the other 1,600 feet in length.

3rd. The interference with streets and city property in Hamilton, including the gas, wa-ter and sewerage system.

4th. The time required for the construceth, the sime required for the construc-tion of the works which would defer the period for the opening of the line to George-town far beyond that agreed upon in the con-tract entered into by the company and as fixed in the By-laws granting aid thereto.
With reference to the two lines vis: that marked line A and that shown as line A with B connection, their relative cost stands as Total estimate cost of line A......$492×70.

These lines are nearly the same length, These lines are nearly the same length, the latter being about 2,000 feet longer than line A, as originally located and both are nearly 2 miles shorter than the easterly route by the Beach to the common point at the Wellington Square station of the Great Western Railway, but as one of the By-laws granting sid to the Railway provides that a station shall be located at the village of Wellington Square, the two former vides that a station snail he located at the vil-lage of Wellington Square, the two former lines would have to be lengthened by a switch track to that place, and consequently, the length of track run over by trains be-tween Hamilton and the common point, in-clusive of this switch referred to, would be about the same.

It will be seen that line A with B connec It will be seen that line A with B connection is less cousty than line A lites!, but there are serious objections to adopting the deviation B, on the ground of interference with the street and city property of Hamilton, as pointed out in connection with that line, and in the fact that the point of junction with the Hamilton & Lake Eris Railway. track at Cherry street mass Catherine street, is a most inconvenient one for bitshining yard room or depot grounds, and therefore, the Hamilton tradit and that intended for shipment from that Port, would all have to pass over the Hamilton & Lake Ecte Railway. been stolen, and he had nothing to prove to the Austrian consul-general that he was duly appointed to represent the Austrian govern-ment at the Centennial. detail. As the detective proceeded in his work a doubt grew in his mind whether the baron was all that he claimed to be. The baron had given him the tags of the tranks, but he could find no clue to them. Up to this point the case is reasonably clear, but as detective Elder, who has all the evidence in his reassander, refused to give any informs. his possession, refused to give any informa-tion on the subject, there are only rumors in regard to the disappearance of the baron.
The police authorities admit that the baron is a pretender and an escaped oriminal, who endeavored to make people believe that he was commissioned from Austria to the Cen-tennial, but they refuse to state what his claims have been. It is reported, however, that he has mary aliases, and has been a notorious criminal in Europe. One report is that, while in the confidence of the Austrian embassy in St. Petersburg, he secured half a million rubles by a successful forgery, and million rubles by a successful torgery, and with this money escaped to this country, assuming his pretended title and position to de e authorities and render himself aufo from capture. Another report is that he was an escaped/convict, who, with others, had planned to defraud exhibitors by representing that he bore a commission from Austria, The former story is most generally credited.

It was reported that he went to a small hotel in Dey street, but careful investigation shows that no person asswering to the description of him has lodged at any hetel or boarding place in that part of the city. It was also reported that the trunks were taken from Jersey City to the Adams express office and shipped to New Orleans, but examination of the books and bills of lading of the Express company fail to show that this is true,—N.F.

OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The Railway Committee of the Privy Council mt to-day as eleven o'clock to consider objections to applicao'clock to consider objections to applica-tion of the Hamilton and North West Reli-way Company, for permission to build a bridge across the Burlington Canal. Present —Hons. Mackeusis, Scott, Smith and Letel-lier. Messrs. Page, Trudell and Buchhing-ham were in attendance on the Committee. Mr. Buckin ham invited the parties in-terested to comp. Defore the Committee. Mr.

williams introduced other gentlemen to the Primier. There appeared for the Com-pany's application, Messrs. Williams and McKcown; against, Messrs, Osler, Mitchell, Griffin and Luather.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie briefly explained the situation of the question as affected by Act or Parliament. Application had been made or Parliament. Application had oeen made by the Company for the bridge. Protest had been entered sgainst granting power by Rosoh and Mitchell. The Government had given the necessary notice of this meeting as provided notice of this meeting as provided for by law, and were now prepared to hear evidence. They would not be swayed by considerations outside those properly be-longing to their duty. They would hear the parties in opposition to the bridge.

Mr. Osler spoke at great length. He op-posed the bridge on public grounds. It should not be built except as a matter of absolute not no built except as a matter of absolute necessity. It would be against public inter-ect and public satety. If any other reute could be shown to be practicable whereby the city could be reached then this eastern route across the cat an should not be follow-ed. He was prepared to show there was another route: the western entrance, as it was called, which, though more expensive, would far better serve familton. Several very serious accidents in Canada had arisen from swing bridges, and they occurred yearly in the United States. This consideration should sway the committee to have as few as possible. Another point was that this Company, by peculiar privilege in charter granted by the Ontario Legislature was really two Companies-construction company and running company. It is individuals posing the Construction Company who desire to bridge the canal. Other Directors, not members of the Construction Company, strongly opposed to it. Mr. Roach, M and another Director, are entirely against crossing the canal. He thought the views of the Mayor ought fairly be held to represent the views of the citizens of Hamilton. Hon. Mr. Smith—That is assuming that the city has an interest in the road?

Mr. Osler-The country within ten miles have no interest in the road across the Canal By a western entrance they would be very greatly benefitted.

Hon, Mr. Scott—What bonus did the County of Wentworth give?

Mr. Williams—Not a cent. (Laugter.)

Mr. Williams—Not a cent. (Laugter.) Mr. Osler—The county had never been asked.

Mr. Scott—What bonus was given by the city? Mr. Osler -Two hundred thousan I dollars under two by-laws.

Mr. Williams—Conditional on crossing the Canal.

h. Mr. Osler—Only conditional as to one, and that not fairly understood. The West end of the city was canvassed in its favor for a western entrance.

Hon, Mr. Scott (Reading from by-law)—
The city by-law shows that it was evidently understood that in case the road did not cross the Beach no bonus would be granted.

Aid, Mitchell said—As one who had assisted in framing the by-law, it was not then believed that any other entrance was practi-cable than that what could be found over the oanal. Mr. Osler continued—If a Ballway Com Mr. Osler continued—If a Hailway Company cannot face an understanding which would only involve an additional outlay of twenty thousand dollars, such Company should not be currented with a great work involving the interests of life and property. The Great Western Estiway had given one hundred and twenty thousand dollars to close the Descarding suite hides and the monance. the Dosjardins swing bridge and the proposed bridge at the Burlington Canal, being more than double the gepan would be still more dangerous. not retain it.

Mr. Griffin appeared to represent Dundas and Waterdown. He spoke strongly id favour of the western enthants. The country aroung he north sidelot this city were united in opposition to a bridge lifter the Burlington Canal. He had been familiar with that the cash. He sad been lamined with the part of the country during his whole life, and opposed one-sing the Canal in the interests of the trade of the trade of Hamilton and neighborhood. It would be of material advantage to the city and county around to adopt the western entrance.

Mr. Williams—Did the County of Weatworth contribute anything towards the road?

Mr. Griffin—The County was never asked.

Mr. Williams—Did it ever contribute a cent to any road? (Laughter.)

Mr. Griffin—It was never asked. (Laugh-

Mr. Williams-No one ever supposed a new western entrance could be made to the city within the limits of the Company's means. He had been accused of favoring a western entrance if it could be produced on western entennes is received to be the Great Western property as an independent line, But he had been assured by the Directors that however courteous and kindly disposed the Great Western people were, this arrangement could not be effected. If Burlington Onnal were not crossed the title beauty of $100,000 and the Halton ed. If Burlington Canal were not crossed the city bonus of $100,000 and the Halton bonus of $65,000 would both be for-felted. He thought it came with very bed grace from the gentlemen present to attempt to burk the whole thing, which was evidently designed.

Further discussion then ensued.

Mr. Osler suggested a delay until the the bridge superintendent, Mr. Bodwell, should report upon the effect of the bridge. Hon. Mr. Williams protested against these delays, the only effect of which would be to defeat the whole enterprise.

He stated that the Company had receipts for 3,000 tons of iron which were in the hands of the Government; that the work was let from Hamilton to Georgetewn, and only awaited the decision of the Government to be gone on with; that the Directors had invested in and became security for the sum of six hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. Mackensie said the County Council had no interest in the question except as a part of the general public. The trade of the city and neinhboring villages might be af-fected, and that was for consideration by these who promoted the enterprise. It was for the Government to consider weather its effect would be injurious to public interests er endanger the misty of novigation. captains aiready taken would be of importance.

Mr. Buckingham then read over the svidence of Captains Jackman, Lewis, Enown, it shill and Kent, all showing that the bridging of the canal would not endanger the ariesy of navigation.

After this some friendly passed. Mr. Williams and the other gentlemen thanked the Ministers for the patient booring they had "received," and then withdraw. Hon. Mr. Mackensie said that the question would receive immediate attention, and the Baliway would probably have a decision on Monday.

THE BRIDGE DIFFICULTY SETTLED. Though the official notification has not been received at the hour of writing, we believe there is no longer a doubt that the railway committee of the Privy Council have decided to allow the Hamilton and North Western Railway to bridge the Burlington Canal. This was a foregone conclusion from the first, to ail who chose to look at the question with a level head and a fair amount of common sense. What the Railway Commit. tee had to decide was not whether there was some other practicable route for the line or not, nor whether there was some other route that was better for the interests of the city. These were questions with which they had nothing to do. The single point for their consideration was whether the bridging of the canal was such an obstruction to navigation that in the interest of the public it ought not to be allowed. There never was good ground for that contention, and we believe the more sensible of the advocates of the Western route, who were present at the first interview with the Railway Committee, six weeks ago, were quite convinced of the weakness of their case, and the hopelessness of convincing the committee that it was a strong one. Having stated their case, they left the matter to be decided without further interference from them. There is a class of people, however, mentioned in scripture, who rush in where angels fear to tread, and a small handful of these packed their carpet bags and rushed off in hot haste to enlighten Ministers upon this momentous question. They represented nobody who had any standing in the case, and the eloquence of some of them must have made the late interview agreeably amusing to the members of the committee. What these busy bodies have accomplished is a delay of six weeks in the commencement of the work, for however good the prospect looked for a favorable decision from the government, capital does not knowingly take any such risks. Had the opponents of bridging the canal been successful they might or might not have destroyed the enterprise, but they would have entirely upset the present arrangements for constructing the road, and conse. quently another season would have been lost, for the men whose money is to be advanced to build the line would not undertake the risks of the western route. That these risks, in the direction of increased expense, would be considerable is shown by the very diversity of the estimates of the various engineers who have surveyed it. The expense by the eastern route is easily calculated and on all hands it is agreed that it is much the cheaper of the two, and this road must be built economically if it is to be built at all. What, after all, would be the advantage of the western over the

The people who think that Hamilton will be cut off by the eastern route have not accurately studied the mode by which a railway benefits a city. The advantage this road will be to Hamilton will be measured by the amount of trade interchanged between the city and the country through which it runs. Whether the Through Traffic which passes over it either way comes through the city or only to the outskirts of it, is a matter of no importance to its prosperity. The fear that Wellington Square will be built up at the expense of Hamilton is a pusillanimous delusion. There can be no rival to Hamilton between here and Toronto; the conditions for one do not exist. The more Wellington

W. proper, not of the Lake Erie Division. This line will not compete with the Great Western but with the Northern Railway, and that competition must be equally effective, no matter whose hands it may fall into. It is true that the Northern does not come near Hamilton, but running to Toronto and the North Western to Hamitton they make these two cities competitors for the trade of the same section of country, and consequently the two railways become competitors for the traffic. There is no escape from this position no matter who may control the roads, so long as they are controlled by separate interests.

—At an carly hour yesterday morning a woman named Mrs. Cox, mother of three children, committed suicide at her residence in Ottawa by banging herself with a shawl a window. Mrs. Cox has led an intemperate life for some time past, and is the same woman who gave birth to a child on the platform of the Protestant Hospital not long since. At the inquest her eldest child Lily, nine years of age, said her mother bought a small loaf of bread on Thursday last and divided it between the family. Since that time they have had nothing to eat until yesterday after the traged y was enacted. The jury brought in a verdict of deliberate suicide.

The Catholic Question.

ARCHBISHEP LYNCH IN REPLY TO SIR A. T. GALT.

TORONTO, June 5 .- Archbishop Lynch, who was present on Saturday evening at Sir Alex. falt's lecture, yesterday, after mass at St. Michaei's Cathedral, preached in answer to it. His Grace said he had heard very little from the lecturer about the relation of the Church and State, but he had heard a good deal of the abuse of the Catholic Church. He strenuously defended the Catholics of Lower Canada and complained of animus erhibited by the Protestants of Ontario to his faith. He said, with regard to temporal authority there is a great deal of cry about authority there is a great deal of cry about our having only one Sovereign. Yes, we have only one Sovereign, Queen Victoria, but we have our God, and our faith; and people who talk about temporal ilberty and ecclesiastical desprism are speaking against God and His Church. All this talk about liberty of conscience is not liberty, but liberthism. Buch attacks cannot hut the Church. Other churches were founded by men, and are named after their founders; but our Church was founded by Jesus Christ. His Grace said that his armon was not against Pontestants and prosermon was not against Protestants, and proceeded to ask what are the duties of State and the duties of Church. As well say State is above God as say state is above Church. Can a man take what meaning he will from the Bitle, and throw aside all creeds? Presbytetians do not say so, for a man who differs from certain points ast down in the Conformation of the State of the from certain points sat down in the Conform to the following the following the following the following the following for his heresy; so with the Church of England, in which thirty-nine articles govern and no deviation is allowed; bo with Methodists, and with them all we have a great deal of complaint about the infalli-bility of the Pope, and yet those who make this outery attribute infallibility to each and every person because each can interpret the Bible as he will. His Grace said the argu-ments he was bringing to bear were those of Cardinal Manning in reply to Mr. Gladstone, His Grace urged upon his hearers patience in persecution, and recommended peace and kindness to those differing from them, and concluded as follows: Catholics must be most loyal because their loyalfy is founded on religion. If German Catholics were not loyal would they not rise against the persecutions of hismarch? But they bear and affor these persecutions should be a persecutions. suffer these persecutions, showing that they have an exuberance of loyalty.

OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, June 2.—Deputations from Hamilton for and against bridging the Burlington canal at Hamilton argued their case before the Railroad Committee of the Privy Council to-day. Mr. Osler, of Hamilton, spoke for the opponents of the scheme and Mr. Williams, M. P., for the H. & N. W. R. B. The interview lasted several hours, and an answer was promised to be given on Monday. It may be accepted as settled that the B. B. has won the cause, but the opposition to the scheme will have the good effect to induce the Government to place all possible and available safe-gaards to public, interests in allowing the construction of the bridge.

OTTAWA, June 3rd.—Yesterday gvening avery sudden death occurred on Sussex street. A man named Wm. Seaton, employed as a tailor, appeared to be in his usual health up to about twenty minutes past fire, when he sat down on the door step and gradually sank, dying almost without a struggle. A coroner was called in, but did-mast consider it necessary to hold an inquest, as the cause of his death was general decay of the system.

"Baptizing His Plants."

To the Editor of The Expositor:

To the Editor of The Expositor:

After a whole week's quiet or gitation, solemn meditation, and doubtless consultation without, limitation with these of his own denomination, and othersof the highest education, for the better cludiation of the question under consideration, and in consideration and in consideration in answer, would occasion. "Greenlus" has, with evident hesitation, sent another communication, lacking concentration, with flowery generalities for the fore part, and flowery generalities for the after part, and the real-uncestion at issue thinly sandwiched in begeneralities for the after part, and the rear-question at issue thinly sandwiched in be-tween. As hitherto, I desire to avoid all side issues, and therefore grapple with my subject at once. Mr. Langford in his pub-lished sermon says as follows:

"Plutarch, who was a contemporary of some of the apostles, writes: For as plants are nourished by moderate, and choked by are nourished by moderate, and choked by excessive watering, In like manner the mind is enlarged by lahors suited to its strength, but is overwhelmed (baptizetai) by such as exceed its power. And in another passage he represents a gardener

Now what idea would you gather from this sort of baptism! There is no religion in this passage. Would the gardener pull the plants up by the roots and immerse them; or is not rather the idea of sprinkling conveyed?"

Historia represents a gardener 'Bartizino ilision, so we must take equal can do not curtail the appointments of this 'Graculus," after a week's delay replies as follows: Now Plutarch in this passage represents the minds of children as plants, and their educators as gardeners applying water to encourage this growth. Keep this metaphor well in view. When a Greek deals in tropes, he sims at making them as apt and precise as possible. He is complaining that parents, with foolish pride, try to force, their children by 'imposing' (superposition) on them excessive labors. He notes the injurious effects and draws the above comparisons. If you sprinkle a moderate amount of water on plants, he says, you nourish them. If on the contrary you' deluge them by applying too much water, you suffocate them, drown them out. Similarly, because them, drown them out. Similarly, but is dropeshof, deluged or overwhelmed, by such as are excessive."

I was not a little amused when I read it, and am now mors so at the petilifogery of "Graeulus," Mr. L., it will be observed, quotes (what I assume is a very fair translation) a paragraph from the writings of Flutarch, and then adds - "And in 'Another passage he repre-

A goodly number cavalierly eatism is a non-essential any way.

"BATTIZING HIS FLANIS."

Now what idea would you gather from this gast of baptism! There is no religion in this passage. Would the gardener pull the plants up by the roots and immérze them or is not rather the idea of sprinkling conveyed?"

On this I remarked:

"From my standpoint the only "point; made in the whole sermon, had it been true, was the statement that Plutarch "represents a gardener 'baptizino his Plants". I detected this a forgery the moment I read it. I am, however, confident that Mr. L. would not knowingly be guilty of so gross an of fence. Now give ear all ye "Græculi." A Mi's and D. D's, Lundesitatingly pronounce that a gross forgery on Plutarch, and challenge for the proof to the contrary. Now "Græculus," is your time to greatly distinguish yourself, and render your friend Mr. L. and the Pedo-baptist cause generally, essential and timely sid, but do not, may I entreat, raise a cloud of side issues, as in your former letters, but confuse yourself to anawering the simple question as thook, chapter and page where can be found the sentence quoted by Mr. L. in large type, "that Plutarch represents a gardener "saptizing matter to encourage their growth.
