

Bill of Rights, and believed private enterprises would build both routes. Articles twelve, thirteen and fourteen would be agreed to. On article fifteen he could not promise beyond the assurance that Canada would consider liberally the requirements of the country, and the remaining articles would be dealt with in a manner satisfactory to the settlers.—Globe.

Confidence of Capitalists in the Narrow-Gauge Railways.

The two narrow-gauge railways, now in course of progress under the direction of Toronto merchants, having reached that stage when the purchase of iron has become a necessity, the Boards have lately been casting about with a view to the accomplishment of this end. One of two courses was necessary—either that the Companies should obtain a large credit at the banks until such time as the iron was in position, or that capitalists should be found who would at once accept the bonds of the Company. Whilst the Boards were unsettled as to which course to pursue, our enterprising fellow-citizens, Messrs. Gooderham & Worts, came forward with a proposition which, whilst, in every probability, likely to insure to their own financial advantage, is worthy of them, and stamp them beyond question as belonging to that type of men which most contributes to the growth and advancement of a city. We believe the details of the arrangement are not yet concluded; but this much is a certainty:—Messrs. Gooderham & Worts agree to take no less than $125,000 of the bonds of the Companies. If on this investment they should receive interest to the amount of ten per cent per annum, it may be safely stated that there is not another firm in the country which would have made the same offer—which, indeed, is in a position to make it. At the same time it is equally certain that no railway ever constructed in Canada obtained money at so cheap a rate. Built as our railways have been almost exclusively on paper securities of one kind or another, the Companies have been made to sweat for the benefit of the money lenders. Messrs. Gooderham & Worts' offer is deserving of no less worthy a name than patriotic. It is fortunate alike for the city and the new railways that we have such public-spirited and wealthy men amongst us.

One of the immediate results of this arrangement will be the departure of Mr. George Laidlaw for Europe, to negotiate for the purchase of the required iron, and we suppose also, for the disposal of a certain proportion of the bonds of the Companies—it is that should be found practicable—in lieu thereof. No one will doubt that with the work in such hands it will be well and ably performed. Mr. Laidlaw will incur no unnecessary delay in carrying out his mission, for it is a matter of pride to him personally—as, indeed, it is to all the members of the Boards—to see the two railways completed, so far as is covered by the present programme. The promises of the Companies have so far been all fulfilled; and we doubt not that the honor of the city and of its merchants will be fully vindicated in the great results which may be expected to follow their early completion.—Leader.

Next to the gratifying decrease exhibited in this bloody record, the most remarkable thing is the small proportion of executions to crimes—about one in eighteen. Alluding to this, Lord Cairns, formerly a judge in Ireland, lately referred in the House of Lords to the difficulty of obtaining convictions there in a way to lead to the inference that most of the homicides, being of landlords or agents, were regarded as praiseworthy rather than otherwise by the country people, who hence failed, or were unwilling to testify.

Extraordinary Phenomenon on Lake St. Clair.

The Chatham Planet says that a short time ago a most extraordinary and sudden rise of the waters of Lake St. Clair occurred, and was particularly observable in the mouth of the River Thames, and along the south shore of the Lake to and beyond the River Ruscom. Parties resident on the lake shore inform us that at first two loud reports were heard, resembling the reports from cannons fired at a distance, after which was experienced a sensation as from a gentle swaying to and fro, as though an earthquake had been awakened from a century's repose. Upon visiting the water line it was discovered that the ice had been suddenly shoved upon the shores and piled several feet in height, carrying with it trunks of trees and logs, which had for a quarter of a century been imbedded in the sands of the beach. At the mouth of the River Thames and vicinity, the ice was thrown to the height of two or three feet, while at the River Ruscom it was raised at least four feet above its ordinary level. As we intimated before, so sudden was the action of the water in the lake that the ice and trees and logs were absolutely piled in a jumbled mass several feet in height along the lake shore for a distance of several miles, but was most observable in the south and south-east quarter. At the mouth of the River Thames the waters fell to their natural level in less than two days; but in the vicinity of the River Ruscom it was fully a week before they had retired to their ordinary boundary.

TRACHINA SPIRALIS—A well authenticated case of Trachina has recently come to light in this city, under the following circumstances:—A short time ago, a medicant applied for and obtained admission into the General Hospital. While there he was treated for stone in the bladder; but he died a few days ago, and, not having any friends, the corpse was handed over to the Toronto School of Medicine for anatomical purposes. Last Saturday one of the Professors of the School discovered with the naked eye that every muscle in the man's body was covered with Trachina. The insects were plainly visible, and there is no doubt but that the man would have died from the effects of Trachina had he not have been carried off by the other disease.—Globe.

FIRE, FEB. 28.—About one o'clock, on Sunday afternoon, a fire broke out in a room connected with the News Record printing office, and spread so rapidly that neither type nor presses could be saved. Jno. A. McMillan's boot and shoe store adjoining was also consumed, but the stock was all taken out. The publishers of the News Record, Messrs. J. & R. Carr, lost over $1,700, and were insured for $500. The buildings belonged to Mr. McMillan, and were insured, but the amount is not known. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A special general meeting of the shareholders of the Toronto and Nipissing Railway Company was held yesterday at the office of the company, corner of Bay and Front streets. Among the gentlemen present were Messrs: R. W. Elliot, President; J. E. Smith, Vice-President; W. F.
McMaster, Wm. Gooderham, junr., John Shedden and T. C. Chisholm, Directors; James Graham, Secretary; E. Wragge, Chief Engineer; J. Leys, Solicitor; J. G.
Worts, Robert Wilkes, J. E. Ellis, John McNab, Thomas Walkington, Ald. Cluments, W. H. Howland, G. M. Hawke, A.
Barker, J. P. (Markham) and others.

The President called the meeting to order at one o'clock and stated that under the general Railway Act and charters of this Company consent of the shareholders was required to be given to an issue of bonds.
There was also a limit placed upon the amount of bonds, which must not exceed the total of bonuses and paid up capital. It is also permitted that the bonds should not bear a greater interest than 8 per cent. per annum. Under these circumstances, he thought it advisable to ask authority to issue as many bonds as may be found necessary for the purposes of the road.

Mr. Worts then rose and said that he was afraid that the resolution which had been placed in his hands might give too much power to the directors, but knowing that the charter provided for the amount to be issued, and the rate of interest as well, he had no hesitation in moving the resolution.
He would therefore move the following resolution:—

Resolved—That the directors of this company are hereby authorized to cause the bonds of the company, payable at such dates and bearing such rate of interest as may be found desirable, to be issued pursuant to the provisions of the railway act and the acts of incorporation of this company and for such amount as may from time to time be required.

Mr. J. E. Ellis said he had much pleasure in seconding the resolution which was then put and carried.

Mr. J. Gordon moved "that the Board of Directors be and are hereby authorized to pay each member of the Board of Provisional Directors such sum or sums for services performed in the country, and at meetings of the Board as in their judgement is fair and reasonable, but not to exceed $5 per day—such amounts to be credited upon any stock subscribed for by any such member of the Provisional Board, or to be credited upon any new stock hereafter subscribed for by any such member." In offering the resolution Mr. Gordon said that the only objection he had to the amount fixed was that it was too small, but as a large number of men had spent their time to whom money would be no object, that he was content to move the amount, but that in any case he thought the proprietors should pay actual expenses.
He had much pleasure in moving the resolution.

Mr. Robt. Wilkes seconded the resolution, which was carried.

Mr. Worts moved a cordial vote of thanks to the President, not only for his services in the chair, but for the very valuable services he had rendered to the Company. Indeed, he had paid as much attention to the interests of the Company as he had to his own business.

The motion was passed unanimously.
Mr. Elliott acknowledged the compliment in a brief speech, in which he thanked the Company for the honor done him. He admitted that he had paid as much attention to the interests of the Company as he had to his own business, and intimated that the Company was now in a position to allow him to pay more attention to his private business than he had hitherto done.

The meeting then separated.—Leader, of the most atrocious character, and so incited public opinion against the murderers that not a voice has been heard in sympathy for them. It was a deliberately planned, cold-blooded murder, without one extenuating incident. A comparatively small sum of money was the only object sought by the perpetrators in the commission of their horrid deed, and for the possession of this the two assassins butchered a grayheaded old man, his wife and a promising boy.

Several letters were written by Bohner, some of which were of the most blasphemous character, and seemed more like the ravings of a madman than the composition of reason. He called the Judge "the poor shepherd sitting in the court," said, "I have laughed heartily over that crime, as I shall kill you like mad dogs," and that he would "count how much lead and shot I need in the next twenty years, especially for the dogs who are sitting in the court."

As before stated, he has been violently blasphemous all through his imprisonment, cursing and repelling his spiritual advisers, and declaring that religion would do for women, but not for men. Yesterday morning he hoped the hanging would take place before noon, as he "wanted to eat his dinner in hell."

At twenty-five minutes past twelve the two prisoners were brought out and mounted the scaffold. Bohner was bareheaded, and wore a blouse, white shirt and brown pants.
He walked with his eyes cast upon the ground, and did not appear at any time to take notice of what was going on. Bodenburg was dressed similarly to Bohner, and wore a black felt hat. He recognized and bowed to an acquaintance as he passed through the yard to the gallows, and after mounting the scaffold looked hurriedly about upon the multitude, as if seeking a familiar face.

Both men were very pale, and at times had to be firmly supported by the Sheriff and deputies. While the preliminaries were being arranged, Boden handled for a moment the noose which hung near his manacled hands, slipping the knot down as if to see how easily it worked, but Bohner, with half closed eyes, maintained the most dogged demeanor.

After prayer by Rev. Mr. Sikes, Bodenburg read his dying statement, and was followed by a prayer from Rev. Mr. Clark.
Rev. Mr. Steckel then asked the men if they had anything further to say. Bodenburg replied in the negative, but Bohner exclaimed in German, "We were both in.
We were both guilty of death," at which Bodenburg vehemently cried out, "Shame on you! Shame on you! You know that I killed no one." As the Sheriff was adjusting the ropes about the men's necks, Bodenburg broke out in a loud voice, "Oh! Lord Jesus! I am coming home. Forgive my sins and take my poor soul up to thy Kingdom. Amen. Amen."

The clergy then left the scaffold and the black caps were pulled over the eyes of the condemned. The Sheriff shook hands with each man, and, waving his hand as the signal to the executioner, the drop was jerked from beneath the trap just as Bodenburg exclaimed, "Tell my family." There was very little movement of the muscles observable. The necks of both men were evidently broken by the fall.

NIPISSING.

We learn by the Globe, that at the last meeting of the Nipissing directors, Mr. R. E. Elliot resigned his office as president of the Company, and Mr. John Shodden was elected in his place.

This step was rendered necessary on the part of Mr. Elliot, from the claims of the extensive business with which he is connected, and which would not permit of such a sacrifice of time as the office of President demanded.

We exceedingly regret the necessity that has deprived the Company of an officer, whose affability, patience and unwearied good nature, has won for him the respect and esteem of every one connected with, or interested in the enterprise. In the dark days of the struggle, when the opposition of rival schemes and the treachery of professed friends, multiplied the natural difficulties a hundred fold; his was the office to cheer the despondent and inspirit the fearful; and in his efforts to push on the work against the tide of opposition, no labor was spared nor sacrifice of time regarded. Often have hours been stolen from the duties of the counting house, despite the imperative demands of business, in answering questions and giving information to friends along the line, who, while visiting town, would call upon the president to enquire how the work was progressing.

We do not hesitate to say, that in the near future, when the Railroad is completed, and wealth and enterprise have followed on its track, a grateful people will not fail to accord to Mr. Elliot, a high place among the men, whose self-sacrificing patriotism, deserves to be remembered, and whose memory will be perpetuated in the noble work which it was theirs to originate.

But while we regret the resignation of Mr. Elliot, we must congratulate the Company upon the practical ability which they have secured, in the person of his successor, Mr. Shodden. As the crank and axle, when balanced on its centre, requires skilful application of labor to move it, but when that point is passed its motion is easy and continuous; so the Nipissing having passed the critical point in its history, requires now but careful and economic management, to secure its early and satisfactory completion.

The Silver Question.

Since the Proclamation by the Finance Minister, fixing the legal rate of Silver at 20 per cent discount after the 15th of April, there has been, quite a panic among the farmers and the holders of silver in this vicinity, and every device is made use of to get rid of the last dollar in silver before the final day of grace. The consequence has been that our merchants have had the silver pouring in upon them in a steady stream, until they are flooded with the bulky and inconvenient medium. So far, the design of the proclamation has been attained, and the silver is being withdrawn from circulation, and confined to fewer holders. The question now is, whether after getting the troublesome customer under our hand, we banish him from the country, or let him slip only to annoy us again. Would it not be wiser in our merchants to export at once, even at 5 per cent loss, than to pay discount on the same dollar three or four times a year.

With this in view, we would warn our readers against the operations of some unprincipled money lenders in our vicinity, who go round the village buying up silver at 4 or 5 per cent discount, and pass it off at par to some needy borrower, charging him besides a high rate of interest. To give an illustration of the mischievous results of this practice, let us take an example from real life. A sells B one hundred dollars in silver, at a loss of five per cent. B, lends it to C, who takes it at par, and pays besides, 10 or 15 per cent interest for the accommodation. C, owes A an account, and with his new funds, settles it on specie basis, leaving the bewildered A, vainly puzzling his brains to find where, after losing 10 per cent, the profits are to come in. We would advise the merchants of Uxbridge to make a combined effort and send off the surplus silver that accumulates up to the 15th of April; when, after that time, by imposing a discount of four per cent, the nuisance may be kept continually in check.

No more deputations from Toronto, nor delicate missions to stubborn Reeves and stupid Councillors. The only opposition now to be overcome is the resistance which nature offers, with mountain, marsh and river, and these will cheerfully succumb to man's determined industry.

With a desire to see how the work was getting on, we started out the other day on a search for the Railroad, and after floundering through the drifted heaps of snow for a few miles, our labor was rewarded and our eyes were gladdened with the distant view of

"Here and there a heap of dirt And here and there a digger."

Pushing on the winding track through swamp and drift and snowy field, we came at last to a spot, where about 50 men were making the lonely glades re-echo to the cheering sounds of advancing industry, and stout old monarchs bow their heads, who, but for their invasion might have reigned in undisputed sovereignty for years to come. As the Spring opens the work will be pushed on with new vigour, and Mr. Ginty, the enterprising contractor, has promised to place upon the work as many men as can be advantageously employed, so that we have no hesitation in predicting that at the time specified, the contract will be completed, and next Fall will find us with a new channel for our increasing trade, and new communication with our Toronto friends.

Incompatible.

We notice in the published formula of one of the most extensive manufacturers of Sarsaparilla, Pectorals, &c., that a combination of Sarsal, Stillingae, Iron, Podophilum is compounded and used under the name of Sarsaparilla, for the cure of chronic diseases. Every educated physician must know that a combination of minerals with vegetables is incompatible; so also is the combination of a powerful purgative with medicines possessing alterative, diuretic, sudorific properties, designed to act on the absorbents and secretions of the skin, glands, &c., the only medium through which chronic scrofulous and skin diseases can be cured. The drastic purgative properties being, as in the case of the formula under consideration, so much greater than the alterative, carries off through the alimentary canal, all the medicinal properties of the alterative before the absorbents are acted upon. In cases where it is desirable to furnish cathartics in chronic diseases, they should be given separately, and at least six hours apart. No physician would give drastic cathartic, at the same time he administered blue pills or calomel. If the sick are affected with chronic diseases, use Radway's Sarsaparillian. If you wish a good cathartic, use Radway's Pills. If suffering pain, use R. R. Relief. Sarsaparillian Resolvent $1 per bottle, 6 bottles for $5. Ready Relief 25cts. per bottle. Pills 25 cts. per box.

Dr. Radway's Remedies are sold by all Druggists and Country Merchants, and at Dr. Radway's Medical Warehouse. Small sums, $16.50. Total $28.50. Collected by Mrs. Welsh and Miss E. Gould. Joa. Gould, Senr. $2.00; Rev. Jas. Douglas, $2.00; J. C. Fawcett, $1.50; D. McKenzie and C. Wheeler, $1.00 each. Small sums, $14.75. Total, $22.25.

THE SUEZ CANAL.—The Malta correspondent of the Times, Eng., says:—Her Majesty's surveying steamer Newport, Capt. G. S. Nares, returned on the 18th of February, after a smooth passage, from Port Said and Alexandria, having left the former place on the 11th and the latter on the 12th. She has been at the Suez canal, with Captain G. H. Richards, hydrographer to the Navy, and Colonel Clarke, C. B., who was accompanied by his secretary, Captain Webb, on board. These gentlemen arrived at Malta on the 16th by the Peninsular and Oriental Company's packet, Delhi, and will leave for Marseilles by the French steamer on the 21st, on their way back to England. Colonel Clarke will, it is believed, call at Nice. From all that can be learned, it appears that the rock which has been blasted to a depth of 30 feet, and the broken pieces of rock, some in huge masses, are being brought up by the dredges, of which there are still six at work. These machines were intended only to dredge mud and sand, but are doing the extraordinary work set them in a very effective manner. Fifteen vessels passed through the canal in January, and about 40 altogether since the opening, some of them, it is said, drawing over 20 feet. Our officers met with the greatest courtesy on the part of the representatives of the Suez Canal Company, who evinced an earnest disposition to afford every facility to obtain information. The director of the transit and transport service, M. Guichard, and Baron de la Tour, another principal officer of the company, took passage in the Newport through the Canal for this purpose. What appears to be most wanted to improve the navigation is an increase of depth laterally, as in some parts the deep passage is still very narrow. It is expected, however, that this desirable object, and other improvements, will be affected by means of the money taken in tolls, without any fresh calls being made on the shareholders.

The notorious individual who figured so infamously in Toronto, Hamilton, London, and other western localities, some four years ago under the name of "Dr. Potts," has at length come to the end of his tether, and has been consigned to the Wisconsin State Prison for life, for the murder of his fourth wife by poison. The circumstances revealed at the trial lead to the belief that three of his wives met with the same fate.—Globe.

A man named Patrick Mahoney has been arrested at Stag Creek, an estuary of the Gatineau River, on the charge of having been the cause of the death of his wife about a year ago. The deposition in the matter was made by his daughter, who it is said, was urged to make it by some enemies of her father.

The inhabitants of Mansfield, Ohio, were thrown into great excitement on the morning of the 12th inst., by the rumor that one of the most horrible murders on record had been perpetrated in their midst.

The house is situated on the street running at angles with the main street, on a line with the railroad, and in the rear of the United States Hotel. It is a double one-story frame building, with an attic. One side of the house is occupied by a family of negroes, and in the other dwelt the victim of the murder. The body lay in the attic, on entering which a most sickening scene presented itself. On a bed in the right hand corner of the apartment lay the unfortunate woman, drenched in her blood. Her wounds were numerous and horrible to gaze upon. The throat was cut from ear to ear; on the right side of the neck there was a deep laceration; on the upper part of one breast was a lacerated wound, and there was a deep cut in the right side of the face, laying open the neck from the angle of the jaw and exposing the teeth to view. In inflicting this wound the assassin had thrust his knife into the victim's mouth, nearly severing the tongue, and drawing it out by some means so that it protruded from between the lips, which were drawn up and contorted as from agony. Besides these wounds, any of which was serious enough to cause death, the beast, in human form, had actually disemboweled the woman. A large incision had been made in her abdomen, from which the entrails, tangled and cut, gushed out. It is impossible to describe the sickening horror of the scene. Blood bespattered the room, on the floor and on the furniture. The bed clothing was dyed with the gore.

There is no doubt whatever that the ill-fated creature struggled desperately for her life.

The appearance of the room indicated that the assassin had overcome her only in a fierce and prolonged struggle. But it is known of the poor creature except that she was a seamstress, named Mary J. [name obscured]. She arrived here from Cincinnati a few days ago, and was reported to be a widow with one child. It is stated that she had two suitors for her hand, one of whom she accepted, and that the marriage ceremony was to have been performed Wednesday next. So far no clue has been obtained to the murderer.

Maple Sugar Making.

Mr. H. Curtis, of Cherry Creek, N. Y., writes me in respect of his experience and success in making sugar from maple sap at the American Institute, New York. He recommends tin buckets as preferable to wooden ones, but urges the necessity, if these last are used, of keeping them scrupulously clean, which requires more trouble than is caused with tin. He prefers a 2-inch bit rather than one for tapping, as doing less injury to the tree, and hangs the buckets by spikes driven into the tree, the buckets having a lateral ear provided for catching the sap. Buckets thus suspended and tipped over, are not filled with leaves, and the tree may be tapped at any convenient part, or at any height from the ground, which is not the case when the bucket has to be bolstered up on the ground, and the sap, as fast as collected, in a cup arranged somewhat above the level of the evaporating pan, so that the sap may freely run into the pan as fast as needed. The reservoir is fitted with a kind of wooden straining device, having a perforated bottom that separates the leaves and bark from the sap. He uses for sugaring off a sheet iron pan, not square and six inches deep. The sap from the evaporator is suffered to run into the pan, whereupon the syrup is turned off. In this condition it is placed in the pans, and to each panful is added a teaspoonful of water to clarify it. In order to know when the syrup is thick enough to crystallize into sugar, a few drops of the syrup is placed on a severe headache, although her lengthened lying in one position on the bed had caused severe hip-sore, which to ordinary people would be very painful. She has again relapsed into the same unconscious state, which seems to baffle all professional skill, but what the upshot of the case will be, whether she will ultimately recover or finally sink under the prolonged suspension is a point of conjecture among the faculty. We understand she has been visited by a great number of people who are drawn thither through motives of curiosity to behold this singular mortal.

The Nipissing Railway.

At a full meeting of the Directors of the Nipissing Railway Company, held last evening, Mr. R. W. Elliott, who has so ably filled the office of President since the organization of the Board, handed in his resignation. Mr. Elliott has been forced to take this step through a press of private business.

By his withdrawal from the Presidency, the Company lose a valuable official; it would be too much to expect that he or any other gentleman should sacrifice his private interests in order to attend to the business of others. Mr. Elliott's resignation was accepted by the Board, and Mr. John Shedden was chosen President in his stead. This is an excellent selection. Mr. Shedden has been on the Board since its formation. He was one of the earliest advocates of the railway, and has never ceased to take an active interest in its progress. We are satisfied that, under his direction, the affairs of the Company will be well administered. On his election to the Presidency, Mr. Shedden subscribed for $5,000 worth of stock, in addition to the stock already held by him. Several of the directors present also increased their stock—a total of $13,000 having been subscribed before the meeting was brought to a close.—Telegraph, March 24.

From Red River.

St. Paul, Minn., March 25.—Letters dated at Pembina up to March 7th, have reached us. They repeat the court-martialing and shooting of a Canadian, named Scott, by the insurgents, in front of Fort Garry, on the 5th inst. The reason given for this cowardly deed is, that Scott, after having been released on parole, had again taken up arms against Riel, and when taken prisoner with Boulton's party, he was found armed in violation of his oath.

All remains quiet in Red River country. Bishop Tache left Pembina for Fort Garry, on March 7th.

Mad Suicide of a Swiss Family in Mexico.

A correspondent writes from Guadalajara of a triple suicide which was committed in that city on the 23th of January, and which created the profoundest impression throughout the province.

The police of the city received information that the house occupied by a French family, of the name of Favre, had not been open for some time, and that an insupportable stench was issuing from the premises. Officers were sent to force the doors, and they found inside the bodies of three unfortunate in a highly advanced stage of decomposition. A medical autopsy established the fact that they had destroyed themselves by suffocation, closing all the apertures of the house and lighting a pan of charcoal. They had been suffering greatly from poverty but had clothed themselves in the very best attire—the well-saved finery, the remnants of their former opulence. The family consisted of two sisters and a brother. The two girls lay in the same bed, wrapped in each others arms; the brother was lying dead in another bed placed at some distance.

The Favre family were of Swiss origin. The father, who was a wealthy citizen of Geneva, lost all his fortune by the failure of a watch speculation. He died shortly afterward, and his wife and three children removed to London, and thence emigrated to Mexico, wandering as far as Guadalajara, where the mother died. They remained here for some time, supporting themselves by manual labor, and earning, amid the general stagnation of industry, a precarious livelihood. They were Spiritualists, and claimed to hold intercourse with their departed mother. On a table in the room were three notes explaining their deaths to be the result of their own act, and in obedience to a communication from their mother, who from the spirit land declared nothing was wanting to complete her happiness save the company of her children.

There were some people in the city who knew the young man, who say that the spiritual message from the mother was only a pretext, and that the young people, who had been nursed in opulence, were tired of manual labor, and heart-broken with the mal de pays, home sickness, which is known to have such powerful influence on the Swiss. At a regiment of the French Regent's Guard, on hearing the Ranz des Vaches, were thrown into such ecstasies of sorrow that many became sick, forty or fifty deserted, and two died outright.

Horrible Murder in Ohio.

The inhabitants of Mansfield, Ohio, were given into great excitement on the morning of the 12th inst., by the rumor that one of the most horrible murders on record had been perpetrated in their midst.

The Narrow Gauge Railway.

The deputation to England of the Narrow Gauge Railway Companies will sail during the present week. Mr. John Gordon, President of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce, will sail from New York, while Mr. Shedden, President of the Toronto and Nipissing, and Mr. Geo. Laidlaw, who is a Director of both roads, will sail from Portland. They form a very efficient deputation, and, I will, we have no doubt, make good arrangements for their iron supply. The roads which they represent are more strongly backed by local capital than any previously set on foot in Canada, and the comparatively small sum needed to complete them ought readily to be obtained in the Mother Country. The popularity of narrow gauge railroads in England is pretty well established by the second article from the London Times on the Festiniog line, which we publish to-day. The results from the Fairlie engine on a two feet railway are something wonderful, and quite upset the old theories of railway engineers. Instead of three feet six being too narrow, it is contended that two feet six can be made as effective as four feet eight and a-half. With these developments Messrs. Gordon, Shedden and Laidlaw will certainly not find a prejudice in England to prevent the success of their enterprise. The large sums given as bonuses place the narrow gauge railways in a very high position. All the money to construct them could be obtained here. The deputation go to England merely as a matter of economy, since both iron and money are cheaper there than here.—Globe.

A Woman in a Trance.

The citizens of Bergen, N. Y., have for some time been quite agitated over a most singular case of a woman who has for a long time remained in a trance or state of catalepsy. The particulars are substantially as follows, as we learn them from the physician in attendance: It seems that a Miss Eliza Randall, being nearly thirty-five years old, about two years ago complained of indisposition. Dr. J. W. Craig, of Churchville, was called, and treated the lady for nervous debility for four or five months, at which period she fell into a sleep that lasted nearly three weeks, not rousing in the meantime. Subsequently she revived for five or six days; when about a year ago she again fell into a sort of cataleptic sleep, and has remained so until about two weeks since, although at remote periods she seemed conscious enough to swallow slight nourishment when given. About two weeks ago she roused up considerably, but only complained of a severe headache, although her lengthened lying in one position on the bed had caused severe hip-aches, which to ordinary people would be very painful. She has again relapsed into the same unconscious state, which seems to baffle all professional skill, but what the upshot of the case will be, whether she will ultimately recover or finally sink under the prolonged suspension is a point of conjecture among the faculty. We understand she has been visited by a great number of people who are drawn thither through motives of curiosity to behold this singular mortal.

...Accounts from Paris represent serious plot, among the members of the international association of workmen, and numerous arrests have been made. — Marshall Serrano has either resigned, or expressed a wish to resign, the agency of Spain. — The discussion of a dogma of infallibility is shortly to come on, in the Ecumenical Council. — A Brussels telegram, says: the Belgium chambers have proposed to reduce the rates of postage. — The measure for the organization of the north-west Territory has just been brought before Parliament. The Globe considers it highly unsatisfactory and thinks it will not pass in its present shape, it fears that it will still pass in a most objectionable form.

New Mexico and Arizona.

A correspondent says of Elizabeth: 'Its streets, like verbs, are regular, irregular and defective, and seem to have been located where mud was deep and most convenient. The merchants buy the greater part of the gold produced.'

Reports of the wonderful richness of the mines in New Mexico are received, ledges being from fifty to three hundred feet in width, and very rich. The station is near the summit of Lierderf mountains, Virginia district, fifteen miles west of Buno mountains. Tucson said to be deserted, the people stambling to the mines. Parties are leaving San Diego and Los Angeles for the mines.

The Apache Pass mine, Arizona, has been sold for $125,000. — Rocky Mountain Herald.

For once we proclaim ourselves heartily in sympathy with Mr. Goldwin Smith. We have often had to differ from this gentleman, but we are now in perfect accord with him. He has been delivering a lecture at Philadelphia, in which he introduced certain observations which the people of England might advantageously lay to heart. Mr. Smith is reported to have spoken as follows: 'I see scandal is again busy with the name of the Prince of Wales. Evil reports about him fill our transatlantic telegrams and our newspapers at this moment. I lived, even when I was in England, far from the Court, and I cannot say how much of it is true or how much is false; I can only say that it is all loathsome. But this I know, that some false reports have been circulated and eagerly believed; and, moreover, that no class of people is more ready to swallow and propagate scandal about royal personages than those who, when brought into contact with royalty, or when they expect any advantage from its power, are most servile in their adulation. The conduct of the Prince of Wales as a student in Oxford was in every respect unexceptionable. Yet, even at that time there were rumors that he was leading a vicious life. I was once anxiously interrogated as to their truth by a person of eminence, who had heard them on what he believed very good authority. I ventured to express my conviction that they were utterly untrue; and subsequent inquiry perfectly satisfied me that my conviction was well founded. There is another story, that of the Prince Consort's having contracted his fatal illness in going down to Cambridge to break off a connection in which his son had become entangled, which I have the strongest reasons for pronouncing to be false; though it is generally believed and has been recently repeated.' There is a manly and thoroughly rational tone in these remarks, which makes it a real pleasure to reproduce them. They are especially appropriate just now, after the audaciously indecent manner in which a cheap evening contemporary has been trifling with the name and reputation of his royal highness. — Sunday Times.

PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

Since the time the contracts on this line were given out, the work has been carried steadily forward with the exception of a few days in February last, when it was found necessary to suspend operations at Uxbridge, in consequence of the great depth of snow which then covered the line in that locality.
The only work which could be properly attended to till recently was the cutting and distributing of ties, and the collecting of materials for the summer's operations; but now that the spring weather has set in, the contractors are enabled to push forward the work vigorously. In district No. 1, extending from Scarboro' Junction to Stouffville, where the earth-work is light, and totally unsuited to winter operations, Messrs. Ginty & Co., have been unable to do much so far.
A large gang of men is now at work in Scarboro', and will be augmented considerably as soon as the ground becomes dry enough to permit the use of scrapers. In the meantime all the piles and lumber to be used in the construction of the various bridges, together with the chief part of the timber, &c., required for the culverts and cattle guards, have been distributed in the places where they will be required. Three fourths of the total number of ties have been delivered by Mr. Wheeler, and a very considerable quantity of fence rails, posts and lumber has also been distributed along the lines.

In district No. 2, extending from Stouffville to Uxbridge, Messrs. Ginty & Co., have had from fifty to seventy men engaged on the excavations all through the winter, and about 30,000 cubic yards of earthwork have been removed. A large quantity of bridge and culvert timber has been delivered, and five of the bridges, more than half the number required in the district, are now completed. Of these bridges, the one crossing the Rouge River, north of Markham, and having a span of forty-six feet, will be the largest. All the bridges are made of solid wood-work of excellent quality. The piles are made of the best rock elm, and the work is well put together. It is the intention of the Company in time to substitute still more durable material in those bridges. All the heaviest cuttings in the district have been excavated for subgrading, and there will be no lack of good ballast throughout.
There will be a force of between four and five hundred men employed on this section of the line early during the present month.
Mr. Wheeler, who is contractor for the fences and ties for this district, as well as for No. 1, has delivered one half of the required quantity. All the fence gates are strong and serviceable, and are provided with hooks and linges ready for hanging.

North of Uxbridge, towards Cannington and the Portage road, Messrs. Cowan & Co., and McRae are getting out the ties and fencing timber, and will deliver them at an early date. The line has been recently located and is now in the hands of Messrs.
Ginty & Co. Arrangements have been made to push this section of the line through with the utmost possible speed.

Messrs. Shedden and Laidlaw are now in England arranging for the purchase of rails, the first load of which is expected to be delivered in Toronto in June. One locomotive is being constructed in England, and another in Kingston, at the locomotive works of the Canadian Engine Company. It is the intention of the Toronto and Nipissing Company to have the line from Uxbridge to Toronto in running order by next fall, and it is expected that thousands will avail themselves of the accommodation to attend the Provincial Show.—Globe.

Fearful Catastrophe.

Richmond, Va., April 27.—A large crowd assembled this morning in the upper por-crash, and in a mass were tangled and half buried in the plaster, timbers and laths. I cannot tell how I felt; but it was an exceedingly curious and sacred sensation. With the settling of the ceiling upon us I was crushed down lower and beneath many others in total darkness and almost unable to breathe. A portion of a man's body, which was bleeding, pressed close to my mouth and thus, I believe, I swallowed not less than a pint of his warm blood, which, however, moistened my mouth, which was full of dust and sand. How long I lay praying, not with my lips, but in my heart, I don't know; but in that terrible position it felt like an age. I got weaker and weaker each moment as I lay with the dead, and some breathing men around me, until I beheld a glimmer of light near by. I can never forget that little particle of light as it penetrated through the broken timbers, benches, and suffocating dust and mortar. It saved my life, for I had then new hope. Some time afterwards I could hear noises, and then the timbers were pulled away, and I was taken out more dead than alive.

Mr. O'Dwyer was then placed in a waggon still praying. His arm was broken, but of this accident he did not seem to be aware.
When he reached his home he warmly embraced his wife and mother, exclaiming, "Oh, how I prayed for you both; I thought I should never see you again."

From all that can be gleaned to-day from survivors, the feelings of most were similar to those of Mr. O'Dwyer. The unfortunate victims were all jammed beneath the floor, the falling ceiling, the gallery and the staircase to the rotunda, all of which were precipitated on them. Many of them died solely from suffocation, as not a bone has been discovered broken or joint dislocated in numerous instances.

Up to the present the list of dead numbers 60, and the wounded, as far as ascertained, numbered 125—a large majority of the number of persons the court room was capable of containing.

Death of D. McDougall, Esq.

We have this week to record the death of Daniel McDougall, Esq., father of the Hon. Wm. Macdougall. The sad event was not looked for, as deceased has been gradually sinking for many months, his last appearance on our streets being about the time of the Fall Fair in October. It occurred on Saturday, the 23rd of April, in the 74th year of his age, he having been born in the year 1796 at Toronto, then known as Little York. Deceased was the veritable—others have claimed the distinction—first white child born in Toronto. He was christened by the Indians "Owosa," and was adopted into the Chippewa tribe in consequence, we believe, of the fact that he was the first white male child born in Little York.

The late Mr. McDougall was the son of a U.E. Loyalist, John McDougall, who was prominent among the brave band who sought the inhospitable shores of Nova Scotia rather than submit to the humiliation of pledging allegiance to a people who would not live under and respect the old flag. He was an officer in the British Service during the American Revolution. Having spent a few years with his loyalist friends in Nova Scotia, he removed with his family to Toronto, where the subject of our notice was born, as above stated. The family afterwards moved to a farm a few miles out, on Yonge Street, where they resided till 1836, when deceased moved into the township of Vaughan, where he lived till 1857, in which year he removed to this town, where he invested a large amount of means in town and farm property. Up to within a few months of his death he was actively engaged in business connected with the management of his property, and possessed remarkable vigor of mind and vitality for one of his age.
He served through the war of 1812, then being about 16 years of age, and did not aware of the situation, and how the so providentially saved when at the jaws of death, their gratitude toward little heroes know no bounds. A pu-immediately raised and presented to and Superintendent Redington, of the ware Division, who arrived on the in a short time with a gang of who also gave the boys a substantial reward.

A YOUNG LADY ACCIDENTALLY SHOTS Yesterday afternoon a small party of gentlemen were out near the University club, with small Derringer pistols at their return one of the party, Miss Eva who had a pistol in her hand, raised her broad and very playfully remarked that going to shoot herself, when it instantly the ball entering near the heart and wound which she survived but a few minutes.

A sad accident occurred at Carrick on Sunday, the 16th inst. A boy, the residence of Mr. Andrew Diemert was accidentally set on fire, the flames quickly spreading parts of the house. Mr. Diemert successfully getting three of his children out of the the fourth, a little girl, was left in the her brother, a young man about 21 through the fire to rescue her, and brought the head of the stairs, when the floor and he fell to the lower floor, whence dragged by his father. The little girl perished the flames, and the gallant young man died following Sunday.

The Bishop of Ontario considers the work of Conybeare & Howson on the "Life and Epistles of Saint Paul" as beyond all praise; and any attempt at eulogistic notice of it, like gilding refined gold. Would rejoice to see it in the hands of every Bible reader.

From Rev. W. McFadden, Wesleyan Minister, Brampton.

I have partly read the new book entitled the "Life and Epistles of St. Paul, and most cordially recommend it to all the lovers of good and useful reading.
